

This month, our 2nd graders would like to spotlight what they are doing during their writing block. Students have been researching animals with a partner using a website called Pebble Go. The partners are taking their research and creating their own non-fiction books using a variety of non-fiction text features. They have engaged in the Writer's Process: brainstorm, draft, revise, edit, and publish. When it is time to publish, students have the choice of creating a paper copy of their book or creating an e-book with their Chromebooks.

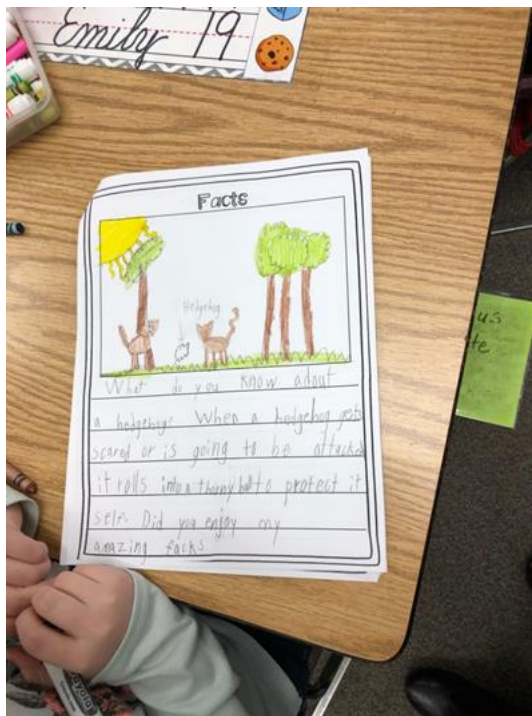

Partners researching using Pebble Go.

Two students revise their draft using a revising check-list.

A student is working on publishing their work looking over their draft and revising check-list.

Illustrating with various text-features!